Tracy received an email from her Uncle George.

Dear Tracy,

I had a close call the other day. A man called last week and said he was a police officer. He told me there was a problem with my bank account, and he would like to fix it for me.

I didn't do what he told me to do and went to my bank right away. I asked the clerk whether there was a problem with my bank account. The clerk told me there was nothing wrong with it. She asked why I was worried about it, so I told her about the phone call. She said that the police don't call people about their bank accounts.

Luckily, I was so careful that I didn't give out any information. In the future, if anyone calls you about your bank account, don't believe what the caller says. Don't take any action until you have checked your account with the bank. You can never be too careful.

Best wishes,

Uncle George

W: Hey Henry. How are you? Did you have a good weekend?

M: Well, Alice. It was OK.

W: Come on, tell us. You don't sound quite sure. What happened?

M: All right. Well, on Sundays we usually go for a walk, my family and I. But yesterday, I set out alone.

W: Where did you go?

M: I went to the forest and it is outside town. It's really nice there. And I started walking when suddenly ...

W: Yes? Suddenly what?

M: Well, in front of me, there was a snake.

W: Are there snakes in the forest? Are you sure?

M: Yes, I'm sure. It was on the path. I stopped. I couldn't breathe until it just went away. I was afraid.

W: Poor you! Why were you afraid? It's just a snake. A snake can't kill you.

M: But some snakes can!

W: You are right. It's necessary to stay calm when meeting snakes.

M: That's why my weekend was just OK.
